

ROOM WITH A HUE

We've worked with our friends at Texas Paint & Wallpaper to select the city's most stunning, color-filled spaces for our fourth-annual Life in Color contest. Each year, we ask Dallas designers to show us their boldest brights, stormiest hues, and most inventive neutrals from their portfolios. The entries were striking, but in the end we chose six splashy favorites. Not only do the winners get a hefty discount at TP&W, including Benjamin Moore paint, but also the opportunity to create and name a custom color sold only through Texas Paint locations.

In this freshly renovated Greenway Parks home, designer Carrie Hatfield saw to it that the living room's octagon-trimmed ceiling was the instant eye-catcher. To call attention to the labyrinthine woodwork, she played with whites, painting the ceiling a few shades creamier than the walls. "We needed something to warm it up a little bit—we needed that slight contrast," she says, confessing her own love for the pure, unadulterated hue. "I love for things to be light, and with white, you can add unexpected dimension."
